1. Read this passage.

One day, the Kaurava and Pandava princes were playing with a ball. The ball fell into a well. The princes crowded round the well. They could see the ball at the bottom but it was too far down for them to reach. They did not know what to do.

Dronacharya, who was passing by, noticed their sad faces. He picked up a blade of grass and threw it into the well. It fixed itself on to the ball. He threw many blades one after the other till they formed a chain. It was then easy for him to pull out the chain and bring up the ball.

The astonished princes ran to their grandfather, Bhishma, to tell him about the stranger who had helped them get back the ball.
